AN EVALUATION OF AOA'S PROGRAM TO PREVENT ELDER ABUSE: FINAL REPORT

ASPE is going to release an evaluation of AoA's Program to Prevent Elder Abuse. In 2012, AoA awarded 5 cooperative agreements to test elder abuse prevention interventions. The interventions were diverse and focused on different types of abuse (e.g., self-neglect, financial exploitation, physical and emotional abuse) at different points of prevention (e.g., primary and secondary prevention) in different settings (e.g., at home, in healthcare settings). This report presents detailed information on the implementation of AoA's Program to Prevent Elder Abuse including the infrastructure in which the interventions were implemented, target populations, core components, and facilitators and barriers to implementation. A striking finding was that self-neglect was the most common type of abuse experienced and co-occurred with all forms of abuse, reinforcing that elder self-neglect is a serious public health problem and a prevalent concern for APS. Financial exploitation co-occurred with other forms of abuse. Many elders served by the preventions interventions experienced more than 1 type of abuse. Thus, elders participating in the prevention intervention had multiple service needs. This report will be posted on the ASPE website by the end of April 2018.

April 27, 2018 -- Advisory Council Meeting #28

The meeting was held on Friday, April 27, 2018, in Washington, DC. During the meeting, the Clinical Care Subcommittee took charge of the theme, focusing on advancing consensus on dementia care elements to guide new outcomes measurement. The Council heard speakers in two sessions, one focused on developing consensus about dementia care elements, and the second on models that are informing outcomes measurement. The meeting also included updates on work from the previous meetings, a presentation on the final report from the October 2017 Care Summit, and federal workgroup updates. Material available from this meeting is listed below and at <https://aspe.hhs.gov/advisory-council-alzheimers-research-care-and-services-meetings#Apr2018>.
